Note: As this is a guide, all questions are solved, including every 'OR' / 'Any ____' question.

PART – A : Contemporary World Politics

Q.1 (1 mark each)

Q.1(a) In which year was the Berlin Wall constructed?

Ans:

1961 (it was demolished in 1989).

Q.1(b) Who declared the Open Door Policy in China in the year 1978?

Ans:

Deng Xiaoping.

Q.1(c) Is India a signatory to SAFTA?

Ans:

Yes (South Asian Free Trade Agreement, signed in 2004; in force from 2006).

Q.1(d) Write the full form of SEATO.

Ans:

South East Asia Treaty Organisation.

Q.1(e) The United Nations Organization was born as a successor of _____.

Ans:

the League of Nations.

Q.1(f) The Anti-Ballistic Missile Treaty was signed in 1972 between the United States of America and the Soviet Union. (Yes/No)

Ans:

Yes.

Q.1(g) In which year was the World Council of Indigenous Peoples constituted?

Ans:

1975.

Q.1(h) Write one objective of the World Social Forum (WSF).

Ans:

To provide a common platform for social movements and civil society groups to oppose neoliberal globalisation and to work for a fairer world ('Another world is possible').

Q.1(i) What is the Kyoto Protocol?

Ans:

An international agreement (1997, Japan; in force from 2005) under which developed countries agreed to cut their emissions of greenhouse gases to check global warming.

Q.1(j) Who became the General Secretary of the Communist Party of the USSR in 1985?

Ans:

Mikhail Gorbachev.

Q.2 (2 marks each)

Q.2(a) What is Amnesty International?

Ans:

Amnesty International is a non-governmental organisation (NGO) founded in 1961 in London by Peter Benenson. It works for the protection of human rights all over the world, campaigns for the release of prisoners of conscience, and against torture and the death penalty. It won the Nobel Peace Prize in 1977.

Q.2(b) What do you mean by the term 'globalization'?

Ans:

Globalisation means the growing interconnection and integration of the economies, societies and cultures of the world through the flow of ideas, capital, goods, services and people across borders. It is made possible by advances in communication and transport technology.

Q.2(c) The UN Security Council has ____ permanent and ____ non-permanent members.

Ans:

5 permanent and 10 non-permanent members (total 15).

Q.2(d) Mention two areas of cooperation between India and Bangladesh.

Ans:

- Trade and connectivity: rail, road and waterway links, and the Land Boundary Agreement (2015).
- Water sharing (Farakka Treaty, 1996) and cooperation in power, security and disaster management.

Q.2(e) Write two new sources of threat to human security.

Ans:

- Terrorism: attacks on civilians by terrorist groups, e.g., 9/11 and 26/11.
- Epidemics and pandemics (HIV/AIDS, COVID-19, bird flu); also global warming, migration and refugees.

Q.2(f) What is cooperative security?

Ans:

Cooperative security is an approach to security in which states work together through international institutions and agreements, instead of relying only on military rivalry, to deal with common threats such as terrorism, epidemics, nuclear proliferation and climate change. Force is used only as a last resort, usually with the sanction of the UN.

[OR] Q.2(f) Write a note on the Brundtland Report.

Ans:

The Brundtland Report, titled 'Our Common Future' (1987), was prepared by the World Commission on Environment and Development headed by Gro Harlem Brundtland, former Prime Minister of Norway.

- It popularised the concept of 'sustainable development': development that meets the needs of the present without compromising the ability of future generations to meet their own needs.
- It said that economic growth and environmental protection must go together, and it warned about poverty, population and pollution.

- It paved the way for the Rio Earth Summit (1992) and Agenda-21.

Q.3 (4 marks each)

Q.3(a) Should India be given permanent membership in the UN Security Council? Give the arguments supporting your answer.

Ans:

Yes, India should get a permanent seat in the UN Security Council, for these reasons:

- India is the world's most populous country and the largest democracy.
- It is among the largest economies in the world, and is a nuclear power with a peaceful record.
- India has made the highest contribution to UN peacekeeping missions and has been elected many times as a non-permanent member.
- The Council is unrepresentative without India and the developing world, so a permanent seat would make it more legitimate.

However, China's opposition and the veto of the P5 make it difficult.

Q.3(b) What is Soviet System? Were the people of the USSR satisfied with the Soviet System? Give three arguments in favour of your answer.

Ans:

The Soviet System was the political and economic system set up in the USSR after the Bolshevik (October) Revolution of 1917, based on socialism and the ideas of Marx and Lenin. Its features were: one-party rule of the Communist Party, state ownership of all property and industries, a centrally planned economy, collective farms, and an egalitarian ideal with guaranteed jobs, housing, health and education.

No, by the end the people of the USSR were not satisfied with it. Three arguments:

- Economic hardship: the economy stagnated; there were long queues and shortages of food and consumer goods, while the West was far more prosperous.
- Lack of freedom: there was no free speech, free press or multi-party democracy; dissenters were suppressed by the KGB.
- Bureaucracy, corruption and inequality: the Communist elite (nomenklatura) enjoyed privileges, and the system was rigid and inefficient; different nationalities also resented Russian domination.

Q.3(c) Write the differences between traditional and non-traditional securities.

Ans:

Differences between traditional and non-traditional security:

- Nature of threat: traditional security deals mainly with military threats (war, invasion) to the state; non-traditional security deals with wider threats like poverty, disease, terrorism, migration and environmental damage.
- Referent object: in traditional security the main object of protection is the state (its territory and sovereignty); in non-traditional security it is the individual and humanity (human security).
- Means: traditional security relies on military strength, alliances, deterrence and arms control; non-traditional security needs cooperation, development and global institutions.
- Source: traditional threats come mostly from other states; non-traditional threats may come from non-state actors and natural causes and are often global in nature.

[OR] Q.3(c) Discuss terrorism as a new source of threat to human security.

Ans:

Terrorism is the use of violence against civilians to create fear and to achieve political aims. It has become a major new source of threat to human security:

- It kills and injures innocent people and spreads fear; examples are 9/11 (2001), Mumbai 26/11 (2008) and attacks by ISIS and Al-Qaeda.
- It is global in nature: terrorist groups operate across borders, using modern technology, funding networks and the internet.
- It harms human rights, the economy (tourism, trade) and social harmony, and increases refugees and migration.
- It needs international cooperation: UN resolutions, sharing of intelligence and action against terror financing (FATF); at the same time the 'war on terror' raised concerns about human rights.

Q.3(d) What is Global Commons? What steps are being taken globally to safeguard the Global Commons?

Ans:

Global Commons are areas and resources that lie beyond the territorial control of any single state and are shared by all humanity: the earth's atmosphere, Antarctica, the ocean floor and outer space.

Steps taken globally to safeguard them:

- Antarctic Treaty (1959) and Madrid Protocol (1991) to keep Antarctica peaceful and protect its environment; the Outer Space Treaty (1967) to prevent the claiming of space.
- Montreal Protocol (1987) to protect the ozone layer; the Kyoto Protocol (1997) and Paris Agreement (2015) to reduce greenhouse gas emissions.
- Rio Earth Summit (1992) and Agenda-21 and UN Convention on the Law of the Sea (UNCLOS, 1982) to protect oceans.
- The principle of 'common but differentiated responsibilities' where developed countries bear more burden, and action by UNEP and NGOs.

Q.3(e) Is the European Union a political organization? Explain.

Ans:

Yes, the European Union (EU) is a political as well as an economic organisation.

- Political institutions: it has its own European Parliament (directly elected), European Commission, Council of the EU, European Council and Court of Justice.
- It has a common foreign and security policy, a common citizenship (EU passport and free movement), a common flag, anthem and a single currency (Euro), and it speaks as a single voice in the UN and WTO.
- It has political conditions for membership (democracy, human rights and rule of law), and it has expanded to 27 members after Brexit (2020).
- However, it is not a full federation: member states keep sovereignty in many matters like defence and taxation, so it is a unique political body which is between a federation and a confederation.

[OR] Q.3(e) Explain any four causes of globalization.

Ans:

Four causes of globalisation:

- Technology: the information and communication revolution (internet, satellites, mobile phones) and cheaper transport (containers, air travel) connected the world.

- Economic liberalisation: since the 1980s–90s countries reduced trade barriers and opened their markets; the end of the Cold War spread capitalism.
- Role of international institutions: the WTO, IMF and World Bank promoted free trade and capital flows, and growth of multinational companies (MNCs).
- Movement of ideas, capital, goods and people: growth of trade, migration and a global culture (media, films, music), which increased the interaction among nations.

Q.4 (6 marks each)

Q.4(a) Do you think Nepal to be a democratic country? Explain briefly.

Ans:

Yes, Nepal can be regarded as a democratic country today, though its democracy is still developing.

- History: Nepal was ruled by the Rana family and then by the monarchy; a multiparty democracy came in 1990 (constitutional monarchy), but political instability and the Maoist insurgency (1996–2006) followed.
- In 2005 King Gyanendra took direct control; the mass Jana Andolan II (2006) forced him to restore Parliament, and in 2008 the monarchy was abolished and Nepal became a federal democratic republic.
- A new Constitution was adopted in 2015, with federalism, a multi-party system, periodic elections and fundamental rights. The Maoists joined democratic politics.
- Problems: frequent change of governments, coalition instability, corruption, and demands of Madhesi and other groups for more rights; in 2025 youth-led protests against corruption and a social media ban forced the Prime Minister to resign, which shows that people remain active in defending democracy.

So Nepal is a democratic republic, but it needs political stability and good governance.

[OR] Q.4(a) Discuss the main areas of conflict between India and Pakistan.

Ans:

The main causes of conflict between India and Pakistan are:

- Kashmir: both claim the territory; wars in 1947–48, 1965 and 1999 (Kargil) were fought over it.
- Partition legacy: communal violence, migration and distrust; and the 1971 war which led to the creation of Bangladesh.
- Cross-border terrorism, which India accuses Pakistan of supporting.
- Water sharing, Siachen glacier and Sir Creek disputes, and nuclear rivalry and arms race.

Q.4(b) Discuss the causes of disintegration of the USSR.

Ans:

The Soviet Union (USSR) disintegrated in December 1991, ending the Cold War. The main causes were:

- Economic stagnation: the centralised planned economy was inefficient; there were shortages of consumer goods, low productivity, and a technological gap with the West.
- Heavy military spending: the arms race with the USA, the Afghan war (1979–89) and Cold War costs drained the economy.
- Political reasons: the Communist Party was authoritarian, corrupt and bureaucratic, with no democracy or freedom, so people lost faith in it.
- Gorbachev's reforms: Glasnost (openness) and Perestroika (restructuring) weakened the party's control and encouraged criticism and separatist demands.

- Rise of nationalism: the republics like the Baltic states, Ukraine and Georgia demanded independence; Boris Yeltsin's Russia declared sovereignty.
- Final blow: the failed coup of August 1991 and the Belovezha Accords (December 1991) by Russia, Ukraine and Belarus ended the USSR, which broke into 15 independent states.

Q.4(c) Explain the role of ASEAN in the political and economic growth of Southeast Asia.

Ans:

ASEAN (founded 1967 at Bangkok) has played an important role in the political and economic growth of Southeast Asia.

Political role:

- Peace and security: it has kept the region largely free of inter-state wars; the Treaty of Amity and Cooperation (1976), the Zone of Peace, Freedom and Neutrality and the ASEAN Regional Forum (1994) help in settling disputes.
- It follows the 'ASEAN Way': non-interference, consultation and consensus; it has brought former rivals (Vietnam, Laos, Cambodia, Myanmar) into one group, and has become a platform for powers like India, China, the USA and Japan (East Asia Summit, ASEAN+).

Economic role:

- ASEAN Free Trade Area (AFTA) and the ASEAN Economic Community (2015) created a single market, increased trade and investment; and the region became one of the world's fastest-growing.
- Free trade pacts with China, India, Japan and Korea, and RCEP (2020) increased the role of ASEAN in world trade.

Limits: dispute over the South China Sea, the Myanmar crisis and unequal development among members.

PART – B : Politics in India Since Independence

Q.5 (1 mark each)

Q.5(a) Who was the first Chief Election Commissioner of Independent India?

Ans:

Sukumar Sen.

Q.5(b) In which year was the BAMCEF formed?

Ans:

1978 (Backward and Minority Communities Employees Federation, founded by Kanshi Ram and others).

Q.5(c) How many Princely States were there at the time of Independence of India?

Ans:

About 565.

Q.5(d) A.K. Gopalan was a leader of the Communist Party of India. (Yes/No)

Ans:

Yes.

Q.5(e) In which year was the Planning Commission of India constituted?

Ans:

1950 (15 March 1950).

Q.5(f) Who started the 'Jai Jawan, Jai Kisan' slogan?

Ans:

Lal Bahadur Shastri (1965).

Q.5(g) Who was the founder of the Mizo National Front (MNF)?

Ans:

Laldenga.

Q.5(h) When was the Shimla Agreement signed?

Ans:

2 July 1972 (between Indira Gandhi and Z.A. Bhutto).

Q.5(i) When did the Supreme Court of India declare the verdict of Kesavananda Bharati case?

Ans:

24 April 1973 (the 'basic structure' doctrine).

Q.5(j) Who was the architect of the Second Five-Year Plan of India?

Ans:

P.C. Mahalanobis.

Q.6 (2 marks each)

Q.6(a) What is Bombay Plan?

Ans:

The Bombay Plan (1944) was a plan for the economic development of India prepared by eight leading industrialists (J.R.D. Tata, G.D. Birla, etc.). It demanded state-supported planning for rapid industrial growth, a strong public sector in basic industries and infrastructure, and land reforms.

Q.6(b) Give two reasons for the failure of the Morarji Desai Government.

Ans:

- Internal quarrels among the Janata Party leaders (Morarji Desai, Charan Singh and Jagjivan Ram) over leadership and power.
- The 'dual membership' controversy (members of the Jana Sangh also belonged to the RSS) split the party; Charan Singh withdrew support in July 1979, and the government fell.

Q.6(c) What is Congress Syndicate?

Ans:

The Congress Syndicate was a group of powerful Congress leaders from the states, who controlled the party organisation after Nehru's death (K. Kamaraj, S. Nijalingappa, S.K. Patil, Atulya Ghosh and N. Sanjiva Reddy). They helped Lal Bahadur Shastri and Indira Gandhi become Prime Minister, but they came into conflict with Indira Gandhi, leading to the split of the Congress in 1969.

Q.6(d) What is the Two-Nation theory?

Ans:

The Two-Nation Theory said that Hindus and Muslims are two separate nations with different religions and cultures who cannot live together in one state. It was promoted by Muhammad Ali Jinnah and the Muslim League (Lahore Resolution, 1940) and led to the demand for Pakistan and the Partition of 1947.

Q.6(e) Mention the names of any two leaders of the Bharatiya Jana Sangh.

Ans:

- Syama Prasad Mukherjee (founder)

- Deendayal Upadhyaya (also Balraj Madhok and Atal Bihari Vajpayee)

Q.6(f) Which countries were the parties to the 20-Year Treaty of Peace and Friendship of 1971?

Ans:

The 20-Year Treaty of Peace and Friendship (August 1971) was signed between India and the Soviet Union (USSR).

Q.6(g) Why was the Eastern India Tribal Union formed?

Ans:

The Eastern India Tribal Union (EITU) was formed in 1955 in Shillong by the leaders of the hill tribes (Khasi, Jaintia and Garo) of Assam. It was formed to demand a separate hill state, since the tribals feared domination of the Assamese language and culture and neglect of their identity and interests. Later it merged into the All Party Hill Leaders Conference (1960), and finally Meghalaya was created as a state in 1972.

Q.7 (4 marks each)

Q.7(a) Explain any four consequences of the Partition of India.

Ans:

Four consequences of the Partition of India:

- Communal violence: lakhs of people were killed in riots, especially in Punjab and Bengal.
- Mass migration: about 80 lakh people crossed the border, creating a huge refugee and rehabilitation problem.
- Division of resources and assets: army, administration, railways, and economic loss, especially of the jute and tea industry in Bengal and Assam (Sylhet went to East Pakistan).
- Lasting hostility between India and Pakistan (Kashmir dispute and wars) and communal tension; minority problems in both countries.

Q.7(b) Evaluate the First Five-Year Plan of India.

Ans:

The First Five Year Plan (1951–56) was based on the Harrod-Domar model and launched by Jawaharlal Nehru. Its main aim was to rebuild the economy after Partition and war, and to control inflation and the food crisis.

Features:

- Priority to agriculture, irrigation and power; huge multipurpose projects like Bhakra-Nangal, Hirakud and Damodar Valley; the Community Development Programme (1952).

Evaluation (achievements):

- The target growth rate was 2.1% but about 3.6% was achieved; food grain production increased, inflation was controlled, and the base of development was laid.

Limitations:

- Unemployment and poverty remained; benefits did not reach the poor much; industry was neglected, and land reforms were not fully implemented.

On the whole, the First Plan was a success and was a good starting point for planning.

Q.7(c) Write a brief note on the Socialist Party.

Ans:

The Socialist Party grew out of the Congress Socialist Party (CSP) formed in 1934 within the Congress by Acharya Narendra Dev, Jayaprakash Narayan, Ram Manohar Lohia, Achyut Patwardhan and others.

- The socialists left Congress in 1948 and formed the Socialist Party; in 1952 it merged with the KMPP to form the Praja Socialist Party (PSP), and later Lohia formed the Samyukta Socialist Party (1964).
- Ideology: democratic socialism, equality, opposition to capitalism and to communism, support for the poor, workers and peasants, and backward castes; the party was divided many times.
- It was in the opposition and played an important role in anti-Congress politics (non-Congressism, 1967) and the Janata Party. Leaders like Mulayam Singh Yadav, Lalu Prasad and Nitish Kumar were from its tradition.

Q.7(d) What is defection? Explain.

Ans:

Defection means the act of an elected member of a legislature leaving the party on whose ticket he was elected and joining another party, or acting against the party's directions, mostly for personal gain or power.

- After the 1967 elections defection became common ('Aya Ram, Gaya Ram' of Haryana), and governments fell frequently.
- The 52nd Constitutional Amendment (1985) added the Tenth Schedule (anti-defection law): a member can be disqualified by the Speaker/Chairman if he voluntarily gives up the party membership or votes against the party whip.
- The 91st Amendment (2003) said that a split is not allowed, and only a merger of at least two-thirds of the members is protected; also it limited the size of the Council of Ministers. Defection is still seen in the name of 'resort politics'.

[OR] Q.7(d) Discuss the main causes of the Assam Movement.

Ans:

The Assam Movement (1979–85) was a movement against illegal foreign nationals (mostly from Bangladesh), led by the All Assam Students Union (AASU) and the Assam Gana Sangram Parishad. Its main causes were:

- Illegal immigration: large-scale migration from East Pakistan/Bangladesh changed the demography and threatened the identity, language and culture of the Assamese.
- The problem of electoral rolls: the sudden increase of voters in the 1979 Mangaldoi by-election, which showed the names of many foreigners, started the movement.
- Economic grievances: loss of land and jobs, pressure on resources, and a feeling of neglect and exploitation by the Centre (oil and tea revenue but little development).
- Demand to detect, delete and deport foreigners and to protect the Assamese identity (cut-off year issue 1951/1971); it ended with the Assam Accord on 15 August 1985, after which the AGP formed the government.

Q.7(e) Write four principles mentioned in Article 51 of the Indian Constitution for promotion of international peace and security.

Ans:

Article 51 (Directive Principle of State Policy) says that the State shall endeavour to:

- Promote international peace and security.
- Maintain just and honourable relations between nations.
- Foster respect for international law and treaty obligations in the dealings of organised peoples with one another.
- Encourage settlement of international disputes by arbitration.

[OR] Q.7(e) How will you differentiate the 1977 Lok Sabha election from previous ones?

Ans:

The 1977 Lok Sabha election differed from previous elections in many ways:

- It was held after the Emergency (1975–77), and the main issue was democracy versus dictatorship; earlier elections were fought on issues of development and the Congress legacy.
- For the first time, the Congress was defeated at the Centre and a non-Congress (Janata Party) government came to power under Morarji Desai.
- The opposition parties united (the Janata Party) under J.P. Narayan; earlier the opposition was divided.
- The Congress did not win a single seat in several North Indian states, whereas it won in the South; so there was a regional divide.
- It was a revolt of the voters, and it was called the 'second freedom struggle'.

Q.8 (6 marks each)

Q.8(a) Briefly discuss the approach of the Government of India towards the Princely States immediately after Independence.

Ans:

At the time of independence there were about 565 princely states, and the British said that they would become independent after the lapse of paramountcy. The approach of the Government of India:

- Sardar Vallabhbhai Patel (Home Minister and head of the States Department) with V.P. Menon followed a policy of persuasion, firmness and negotiation.
- The Government appealed to the rulers to join India in matters of defence, foreign affairs and communication through the Instrument of Accession and offered them Privy Purses and the privileges; the Standstill Agreements were signed.
- By 15 August 1947 most states had joined; but Junagadh (1947, by a plebiscite), Hyderabad (Operation Polo, 1948) and Kashmir (October 1947 after the tribal invasion) needed special action.
- Later the states were merged into bigger units or became Union Territories, and in the 1956 reorganisation they were fully integrated; the Privy Purse was abolished in 1971.
- The approach was based on the people's wish and the principle of unity and integrity; it was successful and gave India a united territory.

Q.8(b) What do you mean by the concept of development? What role did the Five-Year Plans play in the development of the Nation? Explain. (2+4)

Ans:

Concept of development (2 marks):

Development means a process of improvement in the economic, social and political life of the people: growth of the economy, removal of poverty, better education, health, equality, and expansion of freedom and opportunities. It includes both economic growth and the welfare of people.

Role of the Five Year Plans (4 marks):

- Economic growth: the Plans developed agriculture (Green Revolution), industry (steel plants, heavy industry), power, irrigation (big dams) and transport.
- They built a strong public sector and a mixed economy to give self-reliance and reduce dependence on imports.
- They aimed to remove poverty and unemployment and to reduce regional and class inequality (Twenty Point Programme, rural development schemes, minimum needs programme).

- They promoted social development in education, health and welfare, and developed science and technology.

The Plans helped India to grow, though poverty and inequality remain.

[OR] Q.8(b) Discuss the key aspects of the Second Five-Year Plan of India.

Ans:

The Second Five Year Plan (1956–61) was prepared under the leadership of P.C. Mahalanobis (the Mahalanobis model) and Nehru. Its key aspects:

- Rapid industrialisation: priority to heavy and basic industries (steel, machine-building, power, coal), so that India could produce machines at home.
- Big role of the public sector: a mixed economy where the state controls the 'commanding heights'; the Industrial Policy Resolution of 1956 supported this.
- Setting up of steel plants at Bhilai, Rourkela and Durgapur and the Atomic Energy programme; also development of cottage and small industries (Gandhian influence) and a target to increase national income by 25%.
- Economic self-reliance and employment generation, along with socialistic pattern of society.
- Result: industrial base was laid but agriculture was neglected, causing food shortage and inflation, and the foreign exchange crisis; there was a criticism by the Gandhians and the Swatantra Party.

Q.8(c) Discuss Nehru's role as the chief architect of India's foreign policy.

Ans:

Jawaharlal Nehru was Prime Minister and also External Affairs Minister (1947–64), so he was the chief architect of India's foreign policy. His role:

- Non-alignment: he kept India away from the Cold War military blocs (NATO and Warsaw Pact) and followed an independent policy, and he founded NAM (1961) with Tito and Nasser.
- Panchsheel (1954): five principles of peaceful coexistence agreed with China (mutual respect for sovereignty, non-aggression, non-interference, equality and peaceful coexistence).
- Support for decolonisation and Afro-Asian unity (Asian Relations Conference 1947, Bandung Conference 1955), opposition to racism and apartheid.
- Peace and UN: support for the UN and disarmament; India played a role in Korea and in peacekeeping (Congo).
- Weaknesses: the 1962 war with China and the Kashmir issue were criticised. Still his policy established India's independent identity in the world.

[OR] Q.8(c) Discuss India's changing relations with China.

Ans:

India–China relations:

- Beginning: India recognised the People's Republic of China (1950); the Panchsheel agreement was signed in 1954 ('Hindi-Chini bhai bhai').
- Conflict: the Tibet issue and boundary dispute led to the 1962 war; China occupied Aksai Chin. Later clashes occurred at Nathu La (1967), Doklam (2017) and Galwan (2020).
- Normalisation: ambassadors were exchanged again in 1976, and Rajiv Gandhi visited China in 1988; agreements for peace on the border (1993, 1996) followed.
- Economic ties: China has become a large trading partner of India, though India has a big trade deficit.
- Irritants: China's friendship with Pakistan (CPEC), objection to India's membership of NSG/UNSC, Brahmaputra dams, and the Dalai Lama.

India follows a policy of dialogue and cautious cooperation with China.
